We teach the why,

not just the how.

JOHN SANDERS

Intensive Precast Countertops & Sinks 102 March 2005

John Sanders was working in renovations. He found CCI through a forum and saw the beautiful products they were creating. Sanders saw that once you have engineering, you can do anything with countertops, and CCI offered classes on the techniques he needed.

Sanders would need all of the information he learned from CCI for a project he had committed to. The project entailed a 70'x3' bar with a ½ inch lip front and stet designed for comfort. The beer taps were molded in along with a built in variegated stain proof finish for durability. The final result came out as beautifully as he hoped and was less complicated by applying knowledge gained during the Intensive Precast Countertops and Sinks 102 class.

"I've taken the mix designs and hand packing Jeff taught us to create layers. Then, continue on with the mix and finally, mold it. Everyone likes the more variegated style. Now I want to see what Jeff is doing with GFRC so I plan to register for another CCI class soon."

Concrete Living
